St Martin-in-the-Fields

St Martin-in-the-Fields is a church, café, concert venue and shop on the north-west corner of London's Trafalgar Square.

Whether you want to join us in church, enjoy locally sourced food at a great price, enjoy one of our candlelit classical concerts or just need some time away the central London crowds you'll find something for everyone at St Martin-in-the-Fields.

We are an active, open and inclusive church with over twenty services a week which everyone is very welcome to attend. People are also welcome to explore the church or just sit quietly anytime there is no service or concert happening. The Dick Sheppard Chapel in our underground spaces is reserved for quiet prayer or contemplation during the day.

If you want to learn more about the church we have audio guides available in English and Spanish, which can be hired from the shop.

The Café in the Crypt is a popular meeting place for Londoners and visitors alike, and serves great value food which is sustainably and locally sourced wherever possible. Next door, the shop sells a wide range of unusual souvenirs and gifts, and it is here you can do brass rubbing.

We also have art and exhibitions on display across the site, particularly in the Gallery, which is located off the Café.
