

Borough of Southwark

HMS Belfast

A visit to HMS Belfast is one of the essential London attractions with those fascinated by history, war or the armed forces. HMS Belfast was launched in 1938; saw service in World War II, including support of the D Day landings; continued service until 1963; and then became a museum ship in 1971, becoming part of the Imperial War Museum in 1978.

It is the only surviving ship of its type to have played a role in WWII. HMS Belfast is moored by the Southbank of the Thames. Visitors are advised to put aside around ninety minutes when visiting HMS Belfast. There are several other top London attractions in very close proximity, including the historic Tower of London, the iconic Tower Bridge and the scary London Dungeon. Why not visit all four in one day

Explore HMS Belfast's nine decks to discover the stories of life on board this warship during the Second World War and beyond. Imagine sleeping in one of the tightly packed hammocks during duties in Arctic waters, or being stationed deep in the bowels of the ship when she opened fire in support of Allied troops on D-Day. Venture into the interactive Operations Room, and immerse yourself in the midst of a battle in our Gun Turret Experience.

Nearest Tube / Railway Station

London Bridge (Northern Line; Jubilee Line)

Tower Hill (District Line)

Admission

Adults: £14.00

Senior citizens & students: £11.20

Under 16s: Free

Opening Times

March to October from 10:00am to 6:00pm

November to February from 10:00am to 5:00pm

Address / Contact Details

HMS Belfast, Morgan's Lane, Tooley Street, London SE1 2JH

020 7940 6300

hmsbelfast@iwm.org.uk